In Development

Pink Peaks (Music, Lyrics, Book)

An exploratory musical about a young, gay teen in Christian conversion therapy who makes a mental connection with a gay, German prisoner of the nazis in 1943. Together, they discover the similarities of their situation and the hope of reclaiming the pink triangle symbol of oppression.

Exposed (Music and Screenplay; Lyrics and Screenplay by Maggie Moe)

A musical movie based on the Hans Christian Anderson fairytale The Emperor's New Clothes.

Patchwork, The New OZ Musical (Music, Lyrics, Book)

Based on the 1913 book, The Patchwork Girl of OZ, by L. Frank Baum, this musical updates this tale of adventure to be about finding your chosen family and your voice in the progress.

Selected Press/Reviews

“My Pet Dragon captured me from the very start. It never flagged. It skillfully combined creativity and credibility as we witness a young person’s descent into a seductive, awful grip of an all-too-human affliction and the difficult battle to get back control of her life. It is riveting, searing, poignant-and inspiring.” – Steve Forbes, Chairman of Forbes Media

“[Joshua Vranas] cannot write a bad song.” – Michael John LaChiusa, 5-time Tony Award nominated songwriter and librettist (Marie Christine)

“Mad, catchy tunes...[he is] the real deal personally and professionally and has, already, a rock solid sense of craft and an ability to take any story and make it sing.” – Mindi Dickstein, lyricist and librettist (Little Women)

“My Pet Dragon is one of the most promising musicals to ever come from the Graduate Musical Theater Writing Program” – Sarah Schlesinger, librettist and lyricist

“[Joshua Vranas] is a master of melody” – Mel Marvin, composer (How The Grinch Stole Christmas)

“A glorious piece (My Pet Dragon), important and affirming, theatrical and magical and real.” – Donna DiNovelli, librettist and screenwriter
